Title – Victoria University Melbourne Australia My Experience.

Lawry Mahon- Lecturer- School of Education

When was the last time you learnt something really meaningful from someone who you didn't like. So we think getting to know our student body is crucial in order to know where they've come from to help work out where they need to get to.

Julie Arnold Lecturer (Early Years and Primary Literacy Education), School of Education

I'm passionate about teaching because I have an interest in people.

Maree Keating Lecturer-Organisational Communication , Communication and the Arts

I do form a close relationship with my students. We're all in the same boat. We're all experts in our own field, we all go to others for mentoring and to learn things that we don't know about.

James Broatch Doctor of Philosophy (PhD) Sport and Exercise Science

Victoria University' been a great support network for me. Not just with my principal supervisor but also co supervisors, everybody is willing to help lend a hand.

Debadeep Roy Chowdury Doctorate in Applied Psychology

The lecturers here at Victoria University are really approachable. They're very warm and welcoming and they really know they're stuff.

William McKendry Graduate Diploma in Secondary Education

They're dedicated. They're connected to their students, they support them, they're available at all times

Rebecca Deverell

You know, everything they are teaching us is happening in the real world now. I really like that. Its actually interesting to hear what the job will actually be. What you're going to be doing.

Dr Bob Stewart, Associate Professor, School of Sport and Exercise Science

When a student comes in they are immediately embraced and made one of the family if you like and that is an important thing.

Alexander Singleton Bachelor of Arts (Criminal Justice)

It makes you feel that great someone cares about you achieving, you know, success.

Dr Tarquam McKenna, Associate Professor of Education, School of Education.

Our school and this university are very committed to the story of who people really are as they come here and who they can be in the future.

Debora Lipson, Lecturer, Science Education, School of Education

Victoria University cares about every individual student that walks through its doors.

Rebecca Deverell

Victoria University has been so supportive of me studying. When I first started I was doing two subjects just part time. I do have two older children.

Debora Lipson

We bend over backwards to make sure that they're course map works, that they succeed in the units that they are undertaking. We give them opportunities to grow and to develop and to learn.

Catherine Hamm, Lecturer, School of Education

I had a really lovely experience the other day. I was listening to a presentation from one of my fourth year students and I actually remember when she started in first year and she was quite shy and quite young and not so sure of herself and I can really see over time how's she's really progressed into being very confident, sure of what she does and I can really see her teaching in a class room.

Kate Galati, Graduate Diploma in Secondary Education

The lecturers here are very good at guiding you and advising you on career aspects, on ways to put together your assignments

Emma Leatherbarrow, Bachelor of Education (P-12)

They are very inclusive in whatever you do, lecturers and teachers are always here to help you as well.

Dr Bob Stewart

The beauty of this university, that is, Victoria University is that we integrate everyone into the community

Sue Dodd, Lecturer, School of Communication and the Arts

We work very closely with our students and that's one of things I really like about working here.

Alison Whan, Bachelor of Arts (Professional Writing & History)

There's a really good mix of people straight out of high school plus mature age students. Yeah, I've really loved the whole experience so much so that I sought out a job here so I didn't want to leave.

Dr Mark Vicars, Senior Lecturer, School of Education.

I think teaching's very important and I think teachers make a difference.

Jane Landman, Senior Lecturer, Communication and the Arts

No one class or even no one tutorial, no one year group is ever the same

Dr Mark Vicars

And to see the opportunities that education brings into student's lives is something that makes me pinch myself when I go into classrooms.

Dr Tom Clark, Senior Lecturer, School of Communication and the Arts

When you give people a chance to learn at the highest level then that's so exciting because students learning at the highest level actually means me learning at the highest level to.

Dr Mark Vicars

What we do changes lives.
