Victoria University – it's my choice.

It's my choice

It's my choice.

It's my choice

Victoria University, it's my choice.

I really like it here.

There's always something new going on and everyone's really friendly and bubbly.

The Career Counsellors at my school highly recommended Victoria University as a good career path.

Well the first time I came I thought it was really inviting.

Victoria University had the exact time duration as well as the subjects that I wanted.

Victoria University's got one of the best varieties compared to other universities.

The biggest asset of the University is that it has got a large number of courses and Foundation Studies leads students into just about everyone of those courses.

It's not a bridging course for one specific degree. You can get into a range of different degrees.

Next year I'll be doing a completely different course to the one I'm doing now.

I chose VU because it's easy to get to and close to public transport.

I walk from the train station to VU – it's really close, about a 10 minute walk.

There's heaps of parking out the front.

All the students and staff are great. I like it. I like it a lot. I've made a massive amount of friends – all with the same interests.

I'm living next to uni. It's called Victoria Place – the University apartment.

Victoria University is one of the most multicultural hotspots in terms of universities in Melbourne.

Having travelled around the world, I like living in a multi-cultural environment. I think it's definitely a plus.

There's no barrier between local and international students which is good.

In my course, everyone is like family. I've made really good friends – the ones you can keep forever.

Sometimes we walk down to Footscray and have dinner in Footscray before catching the train home.

I enjoy the lifestyle here.

The teachers are all really nice, really approachable.

When they give our lectures it's a pretty full on experience. Hearing their life experiences tells us a lot more than what's written in the text books. So the lecturers are awesome.

It's really warm and friendly. There's always someone you can go to if you need to ask a question.

The facilities here are really good. We've got the gym and the pool and group exercise.

We've got the restaurant, VenU Restaurant and all the libraries.

The cafeterias are good, the foods good. All the lecture theatres are huge and they're comfortable.

Everything's just so easily accessed.

A lot of the people that work here also study here so I've made heaps of friends here.

Curriculum is the same wherever you go, it's the way you deliver it and the facilities that you deliver it in.

It's been awesome.

Victoria University... it's my choice.
