Key objectives

The key objectives of the Career Development Fellowship Program are to:

- enable investigators to establish themselves as independent, self-directed researchers
- expand capacity for clinical, population health, biomedical and bioinformatics research for evidence-based policy development in Australian health systems
- encourage the translation of research outcomes into practice
- bridge the gap between research and industry
- provide a means for Australian researchers working overseas to return to Australia to continue their career development.

Requirements

Prior to submitting the intent to apply form, you are required to:

- carefully read and understand the NHMRC Career Development Fellowship funding rules and advice and instructions for applicants
- meet with the College Research and Training Director to discuss the proposed research project.
